About

Lucia Ferrari, born 1995, graduate student in Communication Design at Politecnico di Milano.

A strong creative inclination, along with great passion for music, has found its outlet in digital production of electronic and experimental music tracks.

Having always been inspired by the world of videogames and animation, I often use their visual language as inspiration for my graphic and web design work.

I am fascinated by the study and use of the graphic stroke. For this reason typography represents one other passion of mine, with particular interest in the differentiation of typefaces, thanks to their impact and contribution to the development of a communication design project.

Lastly, I am keen on the study and use of foreign languages, especially if written in non-Latin scripts.
